

Patrol Officer Warns of Drunk Driving Dangers

"Drunk driving arrests by the California Highway Patrol for the first six months of 1968 were 18.8 per cent above similar arrests in the same period in 1967," Capt. P. J. Ford of South Los Angeles area office of the Patrol said this week.

In the first six months of 1968, 21,850 arrests for drunk driving were made by the Patrol.

Penalties for driving under the influence of alcohol are not light, Captain Ford warned. Any person convicted of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor or under the combined influence of intoxicating liquor and any drug is subject to imprisonment in the county jail for not less than 30 days or by a fine of not less than $250, or both.

"ON THE second conviction within seven years, the judge has no choice about sending the offender to jail," Captain Ford stated. "A jail sentence of at least five days and a fine of at least $250 are mandatory."

Injuring someone through an illegal act or by neglect while driving under the influence of liquor is a felony.

Alcohol is not the only drug that can affect driving ability, Captain Ford said. "It is unlawful to drive under the influence of any drug, including narcotic drugs or amphetamine or its derivatives, whether or not the driver has a prescription for the drugs. It is also unlawful to drive under the influence of toluene (glue).
